PROGRESSIVE OVERLOAD TRAINING PROGRAM

NOURISH MOVE LOVE

Hello and Welcome to Overload 30!

This is your new go-to strength program to build real muscle and break through fitness plateaus. I'm so excited to sweat with you through these 10 challenging workouts!

Why I Created Overload 30:

After a decade of filming and sharing workouts online, I've learned that the basic lifts are the ones that get the best results. Squats, deadlifts, chest presses, back rows — these push-and-pull staples are the foundation of functional strength and muscle growth.

Overload 30 is back to basics, classic strength training with an NML twist (to keep things fun and interesting). Unlike traditional bodybuilding programs that focus exclusively on aesthetic muscle growth, Overload 30 will push you to functionally train in multiple planes of motion, improve your balance and stability, and increase your mobility, all while building muscle like never before. And it's all done in a realistic, 30-minutes a day!

Why Overload 30 Works:

This isn't random workouts slapped together — this program is built on science-backed principles:

- ✓ Split Training: Focus on specific muscle groups for targeted strength and hypertrophy
- ✓ 3 Sets Per Move: Increases training volume to stimulate growth
- ✓ 2-Minute HIIT Finishers: Boost calorie burn and metabolic impact
- ✓ Functional Training: Strength that supports your daily movement
- ✓ 30-Minute Format: Easy to fit into real life — and stick with consistently

How To Use This Program:

1. Follow the Calendar: Overload 30 is a 2-week progressive split training program with 10 workouts. The workouts build on each other and are strategically scheduled to target specific muscle groups.

Week 1 = Days 1-5
Week 2 = Days 6-10

TRAINER NOTES:

- While I follow a Monday–Friday training split and rest on weekends, you can schedule this however works best for your lifestyle. Don't skip rest days — plan them in! Recovery is where growth happens.
- Add a week 3 or 4 if you need more time to work through the program. The point is to follow the workout calendar.
- I know we say this is a 2-week program, but really it's meant to be a 4-6 week program where you REPEAT the full 2-week block 2–3

2. Watch the Daily Videos: Each day has a full-length, follow-along YouTube workout video with coaching cues, form tips, and motivation. These are your virtual personal training sessions—press play, and

3. Track Your Progress: Download and print the Workout Tracker PDF and write down:

- Weights used
- Reps and sets completed
- Notes on form, difficulty, or modifications

Why it matters: What gets tracked, gets improved. Use this to stay accountable and watch yourself rise.

4. How to Choose the Right Weights:

Beginners: Start with 5–10% of your body weight per dumbbell. That's about 8–15 lbs if you weigh 150 lbs. Increase gradually as your form and confidence improve.

Intermediate/Advanced: You should be able to perform the reps with good form, but the last 2-3 reps of each set should feel very challenging to complete, that's your sweet spot.

5. Repeat and Uplevel: Each time you return to a workout, aim to:

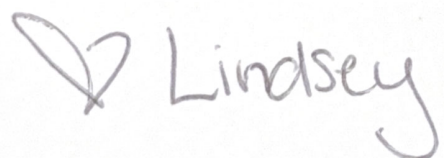

- Lift heavier weights
- Improve form or increase range of motion
- Reduce modifications (push-ups on toes instead of knees)

Additional Trainer Tips

- 1. Train With Intensity: Don't just go through the motions. Push yourself—especially during the last 2–3 reps of each set, which should feel challenging but doable with good form.
- 2. Don't Skip the Warm-Up or Cool Down: Each video includes dynamic warm-ups and cooldowns to improve mobility, reduce injury risk, and enhance recovery. Don't skip them—they're part of your performance gains.
- 3. Fuel Your Training: Strength training demands fuel. Make sure you're eating enough protein and calories to support muscle recovery and growth. Hydrate, rest, and prioritize sleep.

You're here because you're ready to show up and get stronger — not just for the workout, but for everything life throws at you.

Now grab your tracker, hit 'play' and let's do this — one rep at a time. Holy Bananas it's gonna be fun!
